21. Supervised learning is a process providing the Input data as well as the correct Output data to the Training data set In machine Learning model.